HIS SOCIAL EXPERIMENT

By Willard Wall Wheeler

Copyright, 1905, by W. W. Wheeler

"Well, that spoils the evening for me," observed Strong gloomily, fingering a note which said that the grip would prevent a certain young lady from attending the opera that night. "Sorry Gladys is sick. No; confound it if I am! These eleven hour excursions are getting too frequent. I won't stand for it. I wonder if Elizabeth Miller will go." He mused, continuing his dressing. "No; I'll stay at home to-night. What right has a girl to make a fellow miserable anyhow? I—come in."

"And here's your mending, Mr. Howard," said the young woman who entered. She addressed him according to a custom in his family before the death of his parents had driven him into an apartment house, where he had found a position for the faithful servant.

"Thank you, Mary," said Strong without pausing in his wrestling bout with a collar button. "Mary, I have a couple of extra tickets for the theater tonight. Can't you get Pat to take you?"

"It's always Pat you're a-tearin' me about, Mr. Howard, and there ain't a Pat—not for me. I ain't pretty enough, and then, I'm thirty-five. Sure, it's many a year since I've seen a theater. All our money goes to the doctor. I'd have to go alone."

"No, Mary; you must not be neglected in that fashion," he said, turning abruptly from the mirror. "Let me be Pat tonight."

"Oh, Mr. Howard, I couldn't—it wouldn't do, sir. Oh, Mr. Howard, it's jokin' you are, after all," she exclaimed as a smile spread over his face.

"No, Mary, I never was more serious in my life. I am going to give you, Mary McGinnis, the best time of your life. Put on your best bonnet and be ready by a quarter of 8. You live at—"

"On Third avenue, 2736, back, three flights up. But, Mr. Howard—"

"No excuses, Mary. Now goodbye, or we'll both be late."

Throughout dinner at the club that night Strong's face repeatedly relaxed at the oddity of his experiment. Its unconventionality did not worry him, for the wealth and social position of the Strong's put him beyond the sting of criticism.

"Opera tonight, Strong?" drawled young Castlewood, whom he particularly disliked, dropping into a vacant seat.

"No; had planned to surprise Gladys Hastings with that new play—Maureen's—for a change, but she's sick. However—"

"Well, you needn't waste any time asking Elizabeth Miller," laughed Castlewood, "for I'm going to take her myself."

"Oh, don't worry," replied Strong, nettled.

"No offense, old man; knew you were inclined in that direction, though between two fires at present. But by the way," he added, smiling a parting thrust, "I hear that Count de Miguy arrived here today en route for San Francisco. Guess you've heard Gladys speak of him. Keep your eye on him. He's a clever chap."

"Smooth might better describe him. I know absolutely that he's bogus," replied Strong.

"Oh, have it your way," drawled Castlewood, departing. Strong was between two fires, and, knowing it, resented all the more these insinuations. Which disturbed him more, the thought of Castlewood's recent marked attention to Elizabeth or the arrival of the count, he could not determine.

At first Mary was ill at ease that night with Strong, the luxurious carriage, his evening dress and polished manners being strange to her, but his gentleness soon put her at ease. On the way he stopped at a florist's.

"These violets are for you, Mary, and the roses for another nice young lady who is ill," he explained.

"Thanks, Mr. Howard, and it's the lady with the beautiful eyes that is sick? Oh, I am so sorry," she exclaimed.

"Yes, she has beautiful eyes, Mary, but where did you see her?"

"At the tea you gave in your apartments last year. She thinks everything of you, Mr. Howard. I could see that plain, and if she grows up to be as fine looking as her mother, why, you'll—"

"But her mother was not there," he said, coming to her rescue.

"Oh, yes, she kept saying Elizabeth this and Elizabeth that. She—"

"But I'm not talking about Elizabeth. These flowers are for Miss Hastings, the girl with the heavy auburn hair," replied Strong, amused.

"Oh, I remember her," she said disappointedly. "I'm so sorry. I thought it was—I mean—oh, I don't know what I mean. I'm an old goose, Mr. Howard," she finally exclaimed, much distressed.

They were now at the Hastingses, where Strong had ordered the coachman to stop.

"How is Miss Hastings?" Strong inquired at the door.

"Why—why—Oh, she's better," replied the well drilled man, recovering himself. Strong left the flowers and returned to the carriage with strange misgivings.

Strong did not heed the many wondering glances his friends cast in his direction that night, for he was doing his best to make it a red letter occasion for Mary. Moreover, he was hav-

THE LOOK OF A CHILD

Its Pleading Power Was Too Great to Be Resisted.

"The look of a little child is sometimes a wonderful thing," said the man who had risen high on the ladder of success. "I remember that the greatest lesson I have ever learned in my life was pointed out to me by my daughter, who was only five years old at that time. That was fifteen years ago, when I had just attained some measure of distinction in the business world, and I felt that I could afford to rest on my oars awhile. I had never been a drinking man, but frequent conferences at hotel lobbies and after-theater talks with my associates began to tell on me and I am ashamed to confess that I came home many a night slightly the worse for wear and 'booze.' The habit of imbibing grew on me, in spite of fearful entreaties from my wife, until I took a bottle of whisky home one afternoon. After dinner I made for that bottle, which I had left in my study, poured out a glass and raised it to my lips, when I caught a reflection in the polished woodwork of the wall. I turned quickly, and there was my little daughter standing in the doorway looking at me. I could never describe the expression on her face. If one might say it of a child, it was a commingling of reproach, pity and disgust. Probably she had overheard conversations between her mother and myself—perhaps the mother had instilled that feeling—perhaps it was instinct. I have not taken another drink from that day to this."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE PHENIX.

Legend of How It Lived and Died and Lived Again.

The ancient tradition concerning the phoenix has introduced into nearly every language the habit of applying that name to whatever is singular or uncommon among its kind. According to ancient writers, the phoenix was a bird of great beauty about the size of an eagle. A shining and most beautiful crest adorned its head, its plumage contained nearly every tint of the rainbow, and its eyes sparkled like diamonds. Only one of these birds could live at a time, but its existence covered a period of 500 or 600 years. When its life drew to a close the bird built for itself a funeral pile of wood and aromatic spices, with its wings fanned the pile into a flame and therein consumed itself. From its ashes a worm was produced, out of which another phoenix was formed, having all the vigor of youth. The first care of the new phoenix was to solemnize its parent's obsequies. For that purpose it made a ball of myrrh, frankincense and other fragrant things. At Heliopolis, a city in lower Egypt, there was a magnificent temple dedicated to the sun. To this temple the phoenix would carry the fragrant ball and burn it on the altar of the sun as a sacrifice. The priests then examined the register and found that exactly 500 years or exactly 600 years had elapsed since that same ceremony had taken place.

"You lost your money in Wall street, didn't you?"

"I wouldn't say I lost it," answered the precise though unworshipful man. "The word 'lost' implies a remote possibility of its being found again."—Exchange.

Worse Than Lost.

"Don't you find it hard hustling for yourself?"

"Yes," replied the ambitious young chap, "but it's not half so hard as hustling for other people."—Detroit Free Press.

$1000 REWARD

Is offered as a guarantee that neither Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

NOR Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

contains alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. Any one publishing false statements concerning their ingredients will be prosecuted. Doctor Pierce's Family Remedies are compounds of medicinal principles, scientifically extracted from native roots that cure the diseases for which they are recommended. They are medicines which have enjoyed the public confidence for over a third of a century. They are medicines not beverages, made to satisfy a craving for "booze."

"Golden Medical Discovery" regulates and cures constipation, liver and bowels, and cures dyspepsia, purifies the blood and tones up the system generally.

"Favorite Prescription" cures female weakness, irregularities, exhausting drains, painful periods and kindred ailments peculiar to women. Accept no substitutes for these medicines, each of which has a record of marvelous cures. Substitution means selfishness on the part of the dealer who is looking for the greater profit on an inferior article.

"Our daughter who was attending college became very nervous, and we were advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. M. C. Fox, of 57 E. Leonard St., Grand Rapids, Mich. "We did so and then you advised us to get the 'Golden Medical Discovery' also. She took four bottles of the 'Prescription' and three of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and you never saw such a change in a person. She said she did not feel like the same person. She was about seventeen years old at the time. I will gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to every one. I advise parents who have young daughters who suffer from nervous troubles to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at once. I am sure it will help them."

$50,000 GIVEN AWAY. In copies of Medical Adviser, a book that sold to the extent of 20,000 copies a few years ago, at $1.50 per copy, we have given away $50,000 worth of these valuable books. This year we shall give away $50,000 worth of them. Will you share in this bounty? If so, send only one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only for book in slip paper covers of 25 stamps for cloth-bound. Address Dr. L. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Enjoyment of Life.

"Pleasure may perfect us as truly as prayer."

There are many individuals in this world of ours who persist in dwelling in the shadows of life, and like the plant, which pales and sickens away from the sunlight, so for these individuals existence is colorless, while they become weak creatures, who rail in vain at the little time they must put in between eternities. For them the business of life is irksome, and the joy of living unknown. Many men have gone through life without knowing the joys one may take in a real good friend. They do not realize that the greatest pleasure we may glean is to do good to our fellows. Nothing is so all satisfying as to let a little sunshine in upon a sad soul, or to point out a way to those whose hope has taken wing.

There is much enjoyment to be gotten out of good books and in the vast number of libraries is a store of enjoyment and amusement. Carnegie, realizing that reading was one of humanity's greatest sources of enjoyment, and one which would result in the rounding of character and the broadening of horizon, has been giving libraries to many cities and towns. Out of them many men, women and children are deriving great pleasure, while others having no inclination to read a good book, or not knowing how much good reading adds to life, cry out that there are no joys in life for them. The individual who wails this cry is possessed of the wrong ideas. There is something the matter with him, not with life. Some natures are strangely negative.

It is not possible for us all to enjoy the same pleasures. There are too many types of men and women. Human nature is too complex and diversified. There is enough enjoyment and various sources of enjoyment for all to choose from, for a certain amount of pleasure and enjoyment must somehow be gotten out of life, if we would be hopeful, happy individuals. It is necessary to our existence. If you spend a little time or money on pleasure, do not begrudge it. Learn the secret of happy living. We must counterbalance our troubles with our joys, or we will sink into the abyss of perpetual gloom.

There is a question as to whether men or women take the most enjoyment out of living. Men, as a rule, are better philosophers than women, and for this reason probably get more out of life. Woman's opportunities for enjoyment have broadened out wonderfully in the last few years, until today she is at liberty to even go to prize-fights if she takes joy in the primitive passion for physical prowess. The field of athletics is open to her, and club life, too, holds out possibilities for enjoyment. Her joys are no longer confined solely to home and children, and yet with her increased opportunities, she still yearns for more—the exciting diversity of politics for instance—and in some places even has this. Men formerly had more opportunities for enjoyment than did women, but today women have almost equal opportunities. Their home duties preclude to some extent their possibilities, but what they lose of one kind of pleasure they make up in other joys, and the woman who, for instance, cannot go to a concert because of her children, is compensated with a good-night kiss and the prattle of her little ones. The tendency of the hour—to give women more opportunities for enjoyment, more recreation, more mental stimulus—is not to be deplored. It makes them more companionable wives, more intelligent mothers. Men and women must have some kind of amusement. "It is the agency that keeps alive and in healthful activity, the faculties and sympathies, which work fails to use or helps to repress."

Chimmie's Lament

The dreamy waltz is out of date,
They say it has to go,
For this rushing, maddening age
It is, yes, far too slow.
No more will Strauss' gliding strains
Reecho through the hall;
The waltz is doomed.
Alas, alack, it will not do at all.
The minuet, now that was slow,
Its passing was not strange,
But that the waltz should be dubbed so,
I marvel at the change.
Between ourselves, I have waltzed some,
When waltzing was not slow,
The fellows who've decreed it thus,
Well say, they do not know;
They've never tripped fantastic toe,
On Sunday at El Campo.
If they could see how we move here,
Oh! wouldn't they just lamp, oh?
They've never watched the way it's done,
Out at old Harbor View.
The two-step's not so many,
But the waltz, it is a few.
Before they double-cross the waltz,
Those fellows who decree,
Had better come out west.
We'll show them some, here, see!
You girls can two-step with your man,
And coons can cakewalk, too.
But for yours truly, Chimmie,
The waltz will certainly do.

The action taken by the union bands at Sacramento on Saturday last was disgraceful.

"EL MIRADOR" SCENE OF JOLLITY.

Captain and Mrs. Boyes Delightfully Entertain on Thursday Evening.

El Mirador, El Mirador,
There's music in the name.
For royal hospitality,
Already you've won fame.

"El Mirador," the beautiful home of Captain and Mrs. Boyes, was the scene of a delightful party on Thursday evening. The house was brilliantly illuminated and decorated in waving palm branches, asparagus ferns and flowers. The wide verandas, too, were made very beautiful with palms and potted plants. About sixty ladies and gentlemen were present. The evening was opened with two informal cotillion figures led by Miss Kelly and Captain Boyes, and directed by Miss Celeste Granice. "The Mysterious Hands," and "Magic Music," caused much merriment among the dancers.

Taken followed the regular dancing, interspersed by several clever vaudeville numbers. The entertainers were introduced and announced by Jack Kelly.

H. R. Dakin gave a monologue in Dutch dialect, which was exceedingly humorous and well received.

Miss Mamie Kelly, who is possessed of a beautiful dramatic soprano voice, rendered a number that won the hearts of all her hearers and called for an encore.

Walter Murphy gave a clever interpretation of "Old Coat," and also rendered a selection from the "Wizard of the Nile," assisted by Miss Celeste Granice.

Miss Beatrice Bioletti contributed much to the entertainment of the guests by giving two monologues. Miss Bioletti is unusually clever and was much complimented.

The hit of the evening was Jack Kelly, who sang several ragtime numbers, which would have done credit to a professional. The prize story telling contest was won by Mrs. Robt. Hill and L. S. Simmons.

About 11:30 the doors of the dining room were thrown open and the guests invited to partake of a typical English supper, which was greatly enjoyed. During the feasting, a toast written for the occasion by Miss Granice, was given and responded to by Capt. Boyes.

Dancing was then continued and before the guests departed flash-light photographs were taken of the party. Much praise was bestowed upon Captain and Mrs. Boyes for their delightful entertainment.

SONOMA VALLEY AS A WINTER RESORT

Should be Advertised as Such, and People Disillusioned of False Idea of Gold

The summer is passing and with it the summer visitor, who has crowded Sonoma Valley for the past few months. The resorts are better filled at this season than they were at the same time last year, but there is a noticeable falling off as the month goes on. There is no reason in the world why Sonoma Valley should not be a winter resort as well as a summer resort, and it will become such when the tourists and those people who come to California in the winter are disillusioned of the idea cooked up by Los Angeles that we have snow and ice here during the winter months. We have to fight down this belief, held by many comers to California, and Los Angeles people should be taken to task for promulgating these false stories. It seems a pity, with all this to do, that the Board of Trade should be a dead letter. We need literature, and it should be gotten out and placed, but it should not be gotten out and then left unutilized, like the photographs taken of the valley. Not one picture was sent to the State Fair at Sacramento and there was no exhibit from here with the exception of oranges from the Lewis place, which were exhibited through Mr. Lewis' own personal thoughtfulness. If we are to refute the assertions of Southern California prevaricators we must let the outside world know of our oranges, our water temperature, our hot mineral springs, etc.

Sonoma Valley can be made a winter resort. There are great possibilities, but it is up to the people to make an effort.

Petitions for Letters in Chm Estate

Mrs. Mary Dodge Reidy of San Francisco has filed a petition for letters of administration on the estate of her deceased sister, Mrs. Cornelia G. Olson, who passed away quite suddenly in Sonoma Valley a few days ago.

The petitioner declares that the estate consists of real property valued at $1,000, personal property worth $1,000, and other personal property of unknown value.

Besides the petitioner, another sister, Mrs. Florence S. Shirley, of San Francisco, and a niece, Miss Hazel Dodge, of Bloomfield, are heirs to the estate.

Old Resident Goes East

T. S. McCullough, who has lived a bachelor life on his mountain ranch near the Summit Joint school house the past forty-four years, has gone east to spend the rest of his days. Mr. McCullough crossed the plains in 1858. Of late years he has been gradually growing blind, so he sold his home in the mountains and left last Friday for Harrisburg, Pa.

Arthur F. Takes Third Mouey

Joseph Ryan's trotter, Arthur F., took third money in the 2:25 pacing event at Sacramento last Saturday. There were eight horses entered in the race and the time was 2:17, 2:17 and 2:17.

Wine Association's Trust Deed

The California Wine Association gave a trust deed to the Union Trust company of San Francisco on Wednesday to secure the taking up of a bond issue of $2,000,000. The bond is for twenty years, with interest at five percent. The properties conveyed are in Napa, Santa Clara, San Francisco, Sonoma and Alameda counties, and include the Madrone vineyards in this valley.

MRS. G. S. HARRIS PASSES AWAY

After Lingering Illness, Noble Woman Succumbs and Goes to Her Reward

Mrs. Granville S. Harris, wife of the well-known liveryman, and daughter of Mrs. M. E. Spencer, passed to the great beyond on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Broadway, after an illness of many weeks. Mrs. Harris had been a sufferer from valvular trouble of the heart, and despite the skill of doctors and the untiring and loving care of her family, nothing could be done for the sufferer. Some weeks ago she went to San Francisco, where she was treated by her brother, Dr. Alfred McLaughlin, but science nor tender ministring availed not, and the patient wife and mother came home to Sonoma to die.

Mrs. Harris was married to Granville Harris about twenty years ago, and before her marriage was Miss Nonie Spencer. She was a granddaughter of Judge D. O. Shattuck, and a belle of this valley.

Four children were born to her after her marriage to Mr. Harris, and she was a noble mother and wife. For several years past she has patiently watched over a little crippled son and her life was all through one of devotion and sweet submission to the cares which she endured.

Mrs. Harris was a prominent worker in the Methodist church. She was also a member of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club and of the Eastern Star lodge. Her death has cast much sorrow upon the community, who feel deeply for the family in this hour of bereavement.

The deceased leaves, beside her husband, four children, Janet, Granville, Spencer and Eugene, her mother, Mrs. M. E. Spencer, and several sisters and brothers. She was aged 41 years and four months.

The funeral takes place today at one o'clock.

City Tax Rate

At a meeting of the City Trustees held last Monday night the tax rate for the City of Sonoma for 1905-6 was placed at 70 cents on the $100 of valuation. This is five cents lower than last year's levy, and the reduction was made in anticipation of the carrying of the City Hall bond election on the 25th inst., which will obviate the necessity of keeping up a sinking fund to pay for the construction of the edifice.

Baseball

The Alerts of Napa and the Home Nine will try conclusions on the diamond at the race track tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon. The game promises to be an exciting one.

ROMANCE OF A POOR YOUNG MAN

Ed L. Peckham, Formerly an Employee of Robt. Hall, is Now Vice-President of Railway and Rich Man

Ed L. Peckham of Enid, Oklahoma, vice-president and manager of the Denver, Enid and Gulf Railway company, visited Robt. Hall last week. Twenty-two years ago Mr. Peckham was employed by Mr. Hall on his ranch here, where he worked for the small sum of $25 per month. When he left Hall's employ he drifted into the Oklahoma Territory, and there tried railroading. It was a new country, full of promise and opportunities, and Peckham made the best of them. In a short time he was owner and constructor of several short lines of road, and today he is vice-president of the Denver, Enid and Gulf company, and is touring California in his private car. He married a wealthy girl of Oklahoma, and she accompanied him on his visit to Sonoma Valley last week. Mr. Hall was delighted to see Peckham and to learn of his good fortune.

While here Mr. Peckham called on several old friends he had chummed with in the old days on the farm, and invited them to have dinner with him at Agua Caliente Springs. Peckham as vice-president, is at the present time building one hundred miles of new road.

Will Put Water on Market

It is the intention of Mr. Kelly of Boyes' Hot Springs to shortly begin to put the waters of the spring on the market. For medicinal purposes the water is said to be as fine as it is for bathing, and when properly prepared and bottled it should sell well and be a big enterprise in itself.

Mr. Kelly reports this season the biggest ever done at the resort and more bathers are here this month than at the same time last year.

Personal and Social Notes

The Woman's Club will hold its anniversary reception this month. Friend McHarvey will shortly leave for South America.

Jack London's Lecture Was Postponed

The Jack London lecture, which was to have taken place at the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon, has been postponed, owing to the death of Mrs. Granville S. Harris, who was a prominent member of the club.

Miss Celeste Granice of the California History and Landmarks section will arrange to have the lecture, however, in the near future.

RIVAL LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY

Heading This Way From Mendocino County—Big Enterprise Being Put Through at Eel River

One hundred and fifty men are at work on a $1,000,000 enterprise, which is being put through at Eel river, to bring the water of that stream into Potter Valley, where it can be utilized for electric power. The Eel River Power and Navigation company, of which G. W. Scott and W. W. Van Arsdale are the head, is having a tunnel 5280 feet long bored for the purpose of diverting the waters of the Eel river into Potter Valley, where they will have a fall of 420 feet. The fall will supply power for lighting and motor purposes to Mendocino, Lake and Sonoma counties. The work will be completed in the fall of 1906.

The new company will be a rival of the California Gas and Electric company, and will reduce the prices of light and power all over this part of the state. This fact alone assures us an extensive electric road system, for with the reduction in the cost of power, roads can be operated at a small cost, and it is only a matter of time when a network of electric lines will connect all our adjacent counties.

Death of an Esteemed Lady

Mrs. Arthur L. Harris of Oakland, formerly Miss Mary Stewart Pickett of Glen Ellen, died after a year's illness last Sunday morning. Mrs. Harris had many old time friends and acquaintances in this valley, who feel deeply for those left to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place Tuesday in Santa Rosa and was attended by many residents of this place and vicinity.

LOOK OVER THE ELECTRIC ROAD SITE

Messrs. Downes and Renssion of the Petaluma and Santa Rosa Electric Road Go Over Ground Here on Wednesday

E. R. Downes, manager of the Petaluma and Santa Rosa electric railway, and Mr. Renssion, his assistant, were over from Petaluma Wednesday, and were taken over the ground of the contemplated electric road between this place and Glen Ellen. Both gentlemen expressed themselves as being well pleased with the outlook and conditions in this valley for the new enterprise, and they will undoubtedly render a favorable report to E. H. Rollins & Sons of Boston, who will handle the bonds of the new road. Messrs. Downes and Renssion were recommended to the Sonoma Valley Interurban company by Mr. Archer, the representative of Rollins & Sons, and after the surveys have been made by Preston R. Davis, Messrs. Downes and Renssion will figure the cost of construction, etc.

The rock crushing plant enterprise is also being pushed ahead.

EL VERANO. By Happy Hoeligan.

Goe, Cornelius of San Francisco spent Admission Day in this place.

J. Fred McMinn, our school teacher, went to San Francisco Friday afternoon.

Harvey Carriger of San Francisco spent Admission Day with his folks in this place.

Theodor Richards, the genial proprietor of the Caliente Springs Resort, was in town Wednesday.

J. Albert Dutil, one of El Verano's coming "kids," has accepted a position with the Sonoma French Bakery.

Dick Heins, a well-known saloon man of San Francisco, came up from that place Monday evening, and will spend a few weeks at the Swiss-American Hotel.

Thomas Mullen and Hugh Chance went to San Francisco and took in the great light-weight battle at Colma, between Britt and Nelson. They returned home Sunday evening.

Among the rising young native sons who boarded the train at this place Saturday morning for Sacramento were Amele Cornelius, Doe Engler, George Goess, Julius Foehetti and Jimmy Sterling.

The residence of A. C. Chance is receiving a new coat of paint. Hugh Chance, a crack painter of San Francisco, is doing the work, which is very up-to-date. It is Mr. Chance's idea to start a shop in this place in the near future.

Last Wednesday morning one of our summer visitors, while taking his morning walk, got onto the track of a bear, on the road between Sonoma and El Verano. The amazed man, with his hair standing straight, ran back to his boarding house, and all full of excitement called for a gun, which was given him. The rest of the summer boarders at this place also became excited, and the vision of a grizzly bear was on a small army, headed by Henry Cline of the Custom House of San Francisco, proceeded to the place of battle. There was wild excitement. The man with the gun was there, and Mr. Cline, thinking he saw the bear, drew his pistol and fired several shots, but the joke was on the wise ones from Frisco, as they call themselves when they come to the country. It seems that an upholstering party had been camped there, working at the business, and had left some of the bear hair lying around, and the wise ones thought that the grizzly himself, had been there. This is one of the wise Frisco people.

"HAPPY HOELIGAN."
El Verano, September 16, 1905
